UPPER IOWA COLLEGE FAYETTE, IOWA

Ragged edges of our time
Struggling to be mended
Haggard men that scream and cry
Buffering for their sanity

Listen to the sound without
Feel the agitated air
Uneasy, unsteady, unquiet
This teetering sphere sides one way
    And then another
And we sway with
Weighting down this side
    Running to the next
Never balancing.

Listen to the sound within
Arouse the strength that lies asleep
Firm, steady, bold
The soul that listens and receives
Is granted a voice
(For only he who listens can speak)
The mending comes first within.
The voice of reason speaks
Not from the masses;
Not from the we, but the I

Listen to the cry for help
It may come from you
WHO WILL ANSWER?

The Administration as a whole is confronted with the task of maintaining a small college through many crises. Hours of work behind the scenes are involved in this task, even more so with the financial problems that are facing all small colleges Open communication among students, faculty and alumni and administration become paramount in a working solution.

Student Gov't and Social Life Join to Fight Campus Apathy

From Orientation week in August to the many committees represented by members, Upper Iowa's Student Government functions as the primary voice of the student body. Active in planning Homecoming, Winter Carnival, and Parents' Weekend along with Social Life, the Student Government also serves to help the student, and fight campus apathy. Of primary concern this year was Student Government's part in the Interim evaluation, and its efforts to help the student in the many new basic requirement changes.

1) STUDENT GOV'T: (SEATED) Joan Stocks, secretary; Tom Novak, president; Barb Symons, vice-president; (STANDING) Linda Levendusky; George Ingold; Al Martindale; Steve Ryan; Lloyd Keller, Johnny Marinaro; Larry Mulholland; Mr. Walter Griffin, sponsor; Debbie Witte; Jane Slifer; Barbie Jo Owens; Greg Borland; Ranae Prien; Beth Streicher; Paula Printz; Bob Ramsey.
2) Student gov't sponsors the Freshman Orientation and picnic each fall.
3) Held at Klock's Island, the picnic is an opportunity for freshmen to become acquainted with each other and members of the Administration and faculty.
4) SOCIAL LIFE: Greg Fruth; Bob Sorenson; Kari Daily; Kim West; Mary Ann Hedstrom; Edie Gibson; Barb Polich; Sue Lindsay; Dick Adams; Johnny Marinaro, president; Ranae Prien.
5) Bob Ramsey "does his thing" with the help of the "New Colony Six"

In an attempt to beat the weekend exodus, Social Life offers an active social calendar which has included activities ranging from dances, free nights in the Union, an ice skating rink, and movie marathons. In addition to the Homecoming concert, Social Life's greatest success came this year with the 'Superstar' concert. Planned for the spring are a series of mini-concerts and the final large concert on Parents' Weekend.

Speech and Music Depts. Work Together

Gamma Mu Sigma is an honorary music fraternity which provides varied activities for both the college and the community. The members show their support for music by acting as hosts for the musical events on campus. They sponsored a Christmas Concert this year which included both instrumental and vocal music.

The members of Pi Kappa Delta, forensics fraternity, fared well this year. Although their record of 9-9 appears weak, the team did exceedingly well by gaining excellent or superior speaker rating points, allowing the team to place well in comparison to others.

Pi Kappa Delta's appearance at meets met an unfortunate end when the national committee changed the wording of the topic, forcing all teams to abandon what material they had accumulated and begin anew. Because of the lack of funds, Pi Kappa Delta was forced to cease and the team turned its attention to the planning of the annual High School Speech Invitational.

Affiliated with the Iowa Environmental Society, Upper Iowa's Ecology Club began the year with a clean-up project of the Volga River. Films, lectures, and pertinent articles about ecology are presented at regular meetings, along with discussions about the problems of pollution. Petitions and the use of letter writing campaigns have also been supported by the group.

Upper Iowa's Student Education Association tries to help those students considering the teaching profession. Not only does the association regulate much of the student teaching procedures, but it also benefits the student in providing educational magazines, selected guest lecturers and films, and a communication link among the state and national organizations. Prospective Teachers' Day helps area high school students view teaching and related aspects on the college level.

Navel is in its second year at Upper Iowa. Active in intramural sports, last year's team won "The Most Fun-loving Team" award. Besides participating in many other campus organizations and activities, Naval members stage an annual steak bar-b-que.

An organization primarily designed for those who are interested in some area of the sciences, the Science Club also is active in many other areas. Working closely with the Ecology Club, some members present their personal research findings and share the results with the rest of the organization. Besides a full schedule of guest lecturers, films and other demonstrations, the Science Club plans an annual spring field trip and picnic.

Cooperation among all organizations is the basic goal of the President' Club. All phases of campus life and academics are discussed with the hope of obtaining a workable foundation for each organization to follow. Whether it is social or educational, new ideas are the concern of these student leaders.

"Fox Week" is every week. Formed four years ago to provide its members with good times, the Foxes have certainly lived up to their pledge. Most effective of their activities has been their steady support of all UIC athletic events.

Soc Club Sigma Tau SOBs and Socialist Politics

Attempting to interest the entire campus in its activities, the Sociology-Anthropology Club provides campus-wide movies and guest lecturers along with their monthly meetings. A trip to the Effigy Mounds and the Interim course, What makes Sammy run?, were examples of some of the inter-departmental aims of the group.

Sigma Tau Delta focuses much of its activity toward its literary magazine, yet still finds time to actively support both the drama and social science departments. Monthly meetings include literary sessions of the members' own writing and projects in conjunction with the National Council of Teachers of English.

The Young Democrats swung into action early this fall as the 18-year olds turned out to vote. Beginning with the Fayeete city elections, and including the democratic caucus in January, the group concentrated most of its efforts in decreasing voter apathy.

Sigma Omega Beta rounds out its social calendar with weekend activities and projects for its members. Actively participating in many athletic events, not to say many non-academic ones as well, the group concentrates much of its activity toward planning fall and spring outdoor gatherings.

Newman Association received a shot in the arm this year with its Big Brother program. Designed to give college students the opportunity to help deserving youngsters, the program proved quite successful.

The Eye enjoyed a fun-filled year with formal dinners and school involvement a part of the agenda. Much of the year's activities were directed toward an all-girl party in the spring.

Alpha Psi Omega, national drama fraternity, had as its major goal this year a building of quality membership. Always involved in any school productions, the group itself sponsored the Children's Theatre this spring.

The Brotherhood participated in intramurals, as well as varsity sports while remaining an individual group of friends.

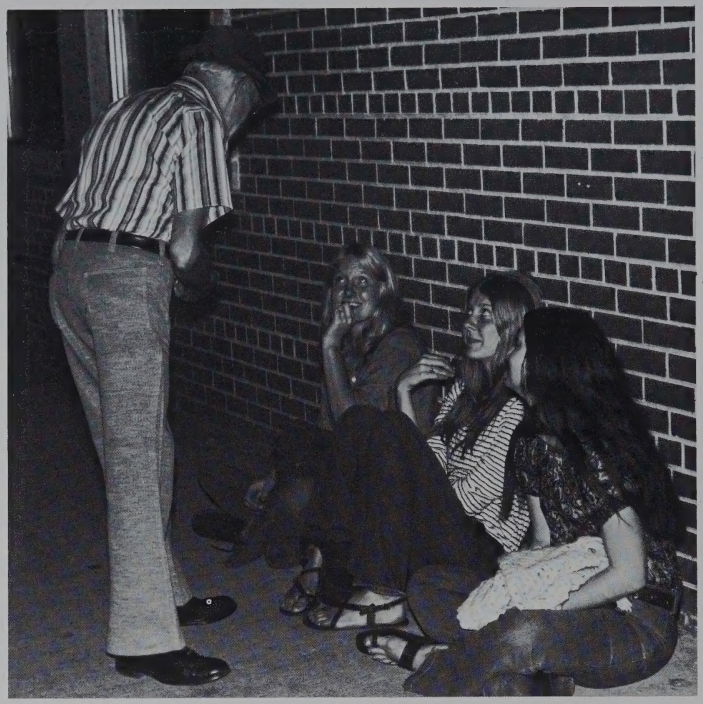
For those wives of students on campus, Campus Wives offers them a chance to socialize, sponsor money-raising projects, and become involved with other campus activities. The aim of the group is to ultimately raise enough money so that they are able to treat their husbands to a special evening of dinner and dancing.

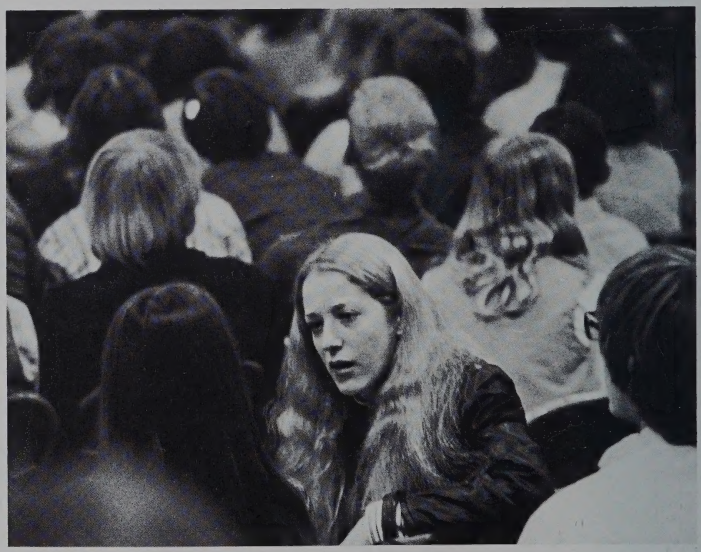
The Tutor Society was organized by Upper Iowa with the academic welfare of its students in mind. Recommended by the faculty, this group of exceptional students provides private tutoring for all students while also furthering interest in the teaching profession.

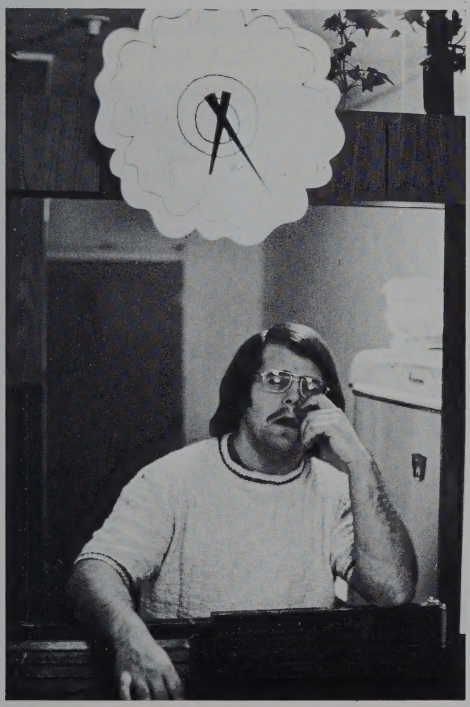
One of the oldest organizations on the Upper Iowa campus is the Veterans Club. In many of its activities, it strives to serve both the community and college. In addition to their services as Color Guard for Homecoming and the usual Veterans Day ceremonies, regular activities include the gun, coin, and antique show, an entry in the Homecoming parade, and a car wash. One of the major activities of the year included roughly 200 visiting veterans from Iowa junior colleges.

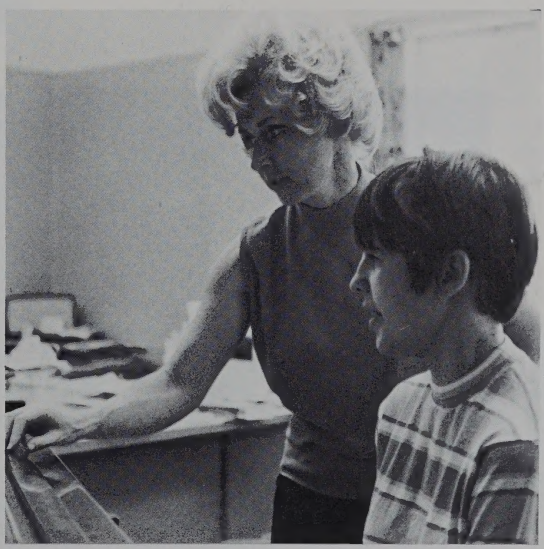
Activities



The Lyrics of Day to Day Events . . .



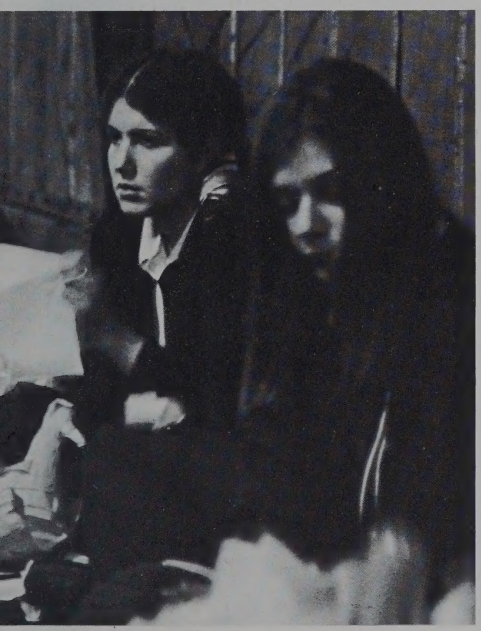




Homecoming '72 Hits UIC

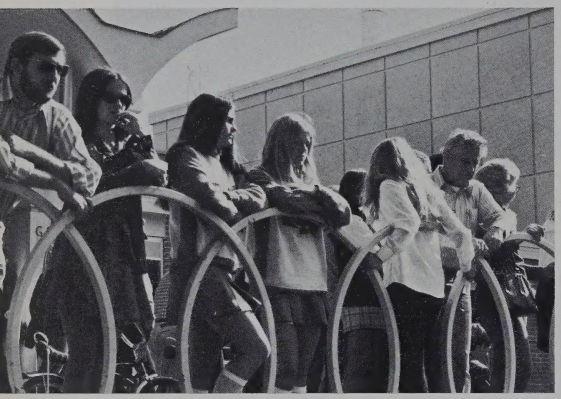
The preliminary events of Homecoming week involved may in planning floats, activities, and parties, but as Friday drew near the excitement mounted. With the crowning of Jo Brockage as Queen, the introduction of the football team, and the bonfire, Homecoming 1972 was off to a grand start.

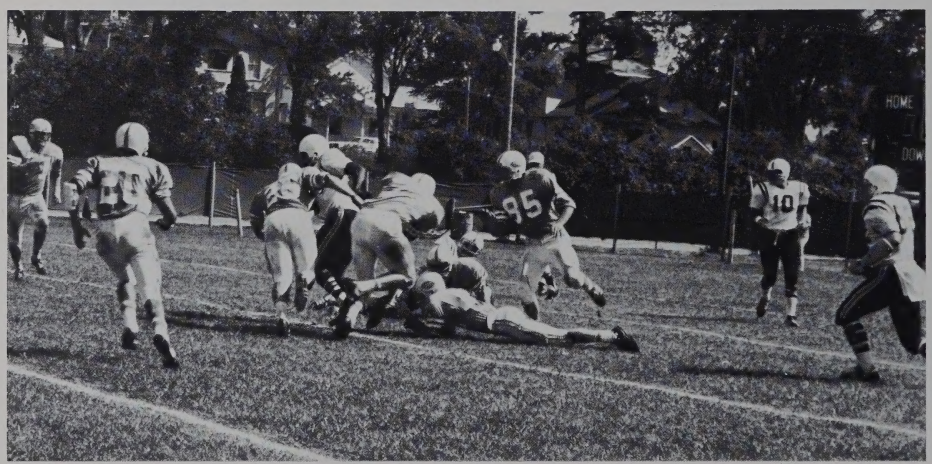
Saturday morning began early for most, with the parade and pre-game activities. Beta Theta Phi took the Sweepstakes prize for their float and Kappa and Chi Delts claimed first. After the parade, everyone returned to the college for the banquet and outdoor band.



Dave Sparks provided dinner music in the cafeteria, while the Cohesion provided outdoor music. Parents and guests toured the college and were included in all the excitement of Homecoming.

As the time grew nearer for the beginning of the game, alumni and students headed for the football field. All met there with the hope that Upper Iowa would win its most important game of the year.





Even the high spirits and optimistic kick-off of the game could not stop Buena Vista's first quarter touchdown. Leading by 14-10 at the half, Upper Iowa's second half defense was excellent. Again it looked as if UI might win, but an attempt during the last quarter failed. Upper Iowa may have lost, but it was one of the best games in statistics and team unity.

Half-time ceremonies included the presentation of honors to Mr. and Mrs. Roger Dooley, Grand Marshalls. Mr. Dooley is associated with an athletic goods factory in Minnesota and contributed the new scoreboard for the football field.

With the presentation of the Queen and her court, the final half of the football game, and the mingling of friends and alumni, the end of the Homecoming festivities was drawing near.

Saturday evening featured a concert with the New Colony Six. Returning after a two year absence from Upper Iowa, the band found themselves still welcome.

The final event of the weekend came Sunday evening after a long day of recuperating. A W. C. Fields Film Festival provided a relaxing conclusion to the eventful weekend.

Winter Carnival '72 Begins With a Bang; Then Suffers From Frostbite

Winter Carnival '72 began as students returned from their various activities of Interim. Forces joined together to make it a "homecoming" for those who were away during January and a swing back into things for those who had spent the month on campus.

The festivities began with a double-bill presentation by the drama department of two Moliere plays, "The Imaginery Invalid" and "A Doctor in Spite of Himself". The week's activities were interspersed with free nights in the union and card tournaments, but the major emphasis fell upon the talent show, Harold's Night, and the concert. Newest addition, and most popular, was the fireworks display on the practice field.

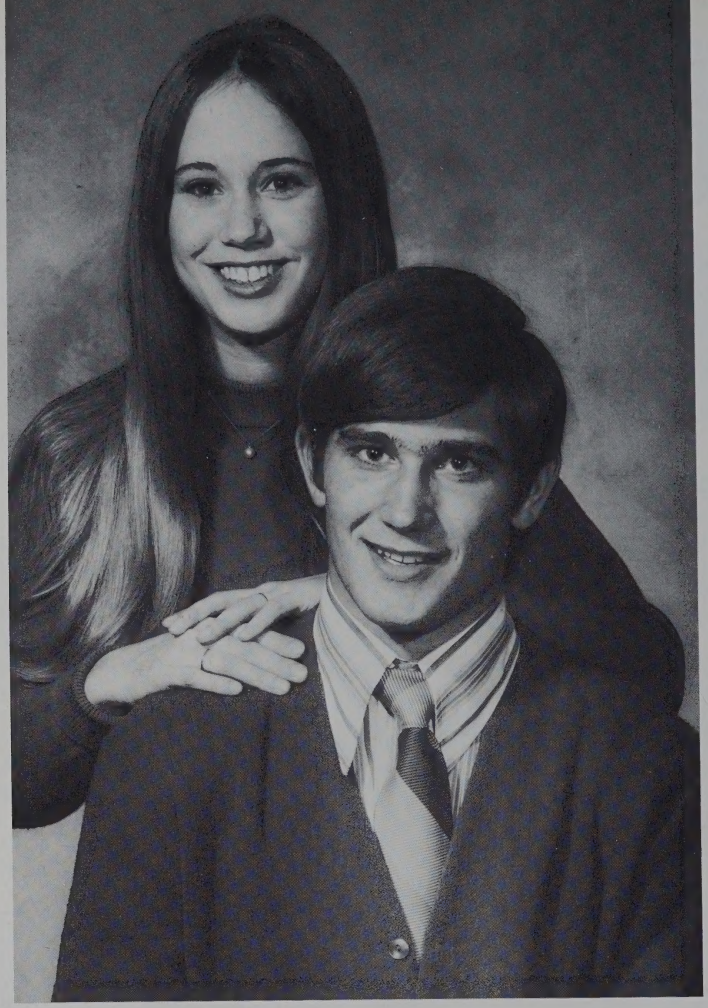
The most successful event of the week long celebration was Talent Night. Staged in Colgrove-Walker Auditorium, the array of talent was surprisingly good, sufficiently varied, and altogether provided an enjoyable evening.

Master of Ceremonies, John Marinaro provided a typically unusual program with the EYE receiving first place. Featuring Marion Volino, the EYE presented a raucous version of "Don't Tell Mama", while Gary Gullaksen accompanied on drums.

Some of the other outstanding acts of the evening included Dave and Janet, Alpha Psi Omega with a skit depicting the virtues of Snow White, and Bob Ramsey and Larry Kubik in a guitar and banjo duet.

The excitement of the initial activities continued through the Upper Iowa Invitational. Although the wrestlers as a team placed a close second, the excellence of individuals shone through. Upper Iowa claimed four champions and also best wrestler honors.

The biggest disappointment of the Carnival was the lack of snowfall. Even with temperatures well below the zero mark, the few patches of snow already on the ground just weren't enough for the planned events. The usual snow sculpture contest had to be cancelled, therefore, and the scheduled winter games were also abandoned.



Carol Johnson and Marshall Richards

Winter Carnival King and Queen

With the bitterly cold weather and lack of snow, the "winter" part of the weekend dampened spirits somewhat. Moved from the cafeteria to Colgrove-Walker, the annual Harold's Night was not as successful as it might have been. Again due to the cold weather, many students were unwilling to trek the distance to CW, and once there found that a cover charge had been imposed.

The remainder of the activities included a concert featuring Enoch Smokey, a mini-concert with the Triad, and movies in the cafeteria. For all the excellent planning and varied activities of the Carnival, its success seemed certain. Highlights of the Carnival included the talent show, concert, and Harold's Night, but these alone could not carry the week through.

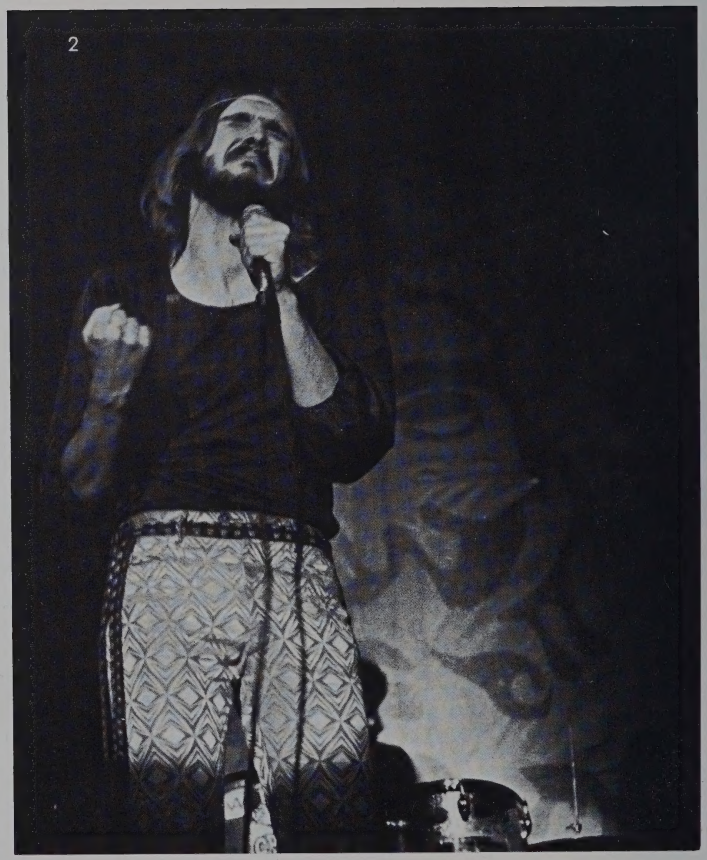
'Superstar' Rocks Full House

Music from 'Jesus Christ, Superstar' was presented at Upper Iowa Wednesday, December 1st. Seven musicians and five lead vocalists from the National Touring Company performed for a full house - over 1, 800 in attendance.

The work in preparing the concert was executed smoothly, contributing to the concert's success. Art work was supplied by Mark Haltof and Jeff Mervin, with the drama department providing the background flats. The 'Superstar' cast enjoyed the performance, and later took both of the angels from the set along with them.



1) Entire cast of 'Superstar' making another curtain call.
2) J. C. confused with his role on earth.
3) Pontius Pilot washing his hands of the whole matter.
4) Herod taunts Christ with questions.
5) J. C. playing his part to a 'T'.
6) The mocking of Christ by Herod.
7) All characters participating in the whipping of J. C.

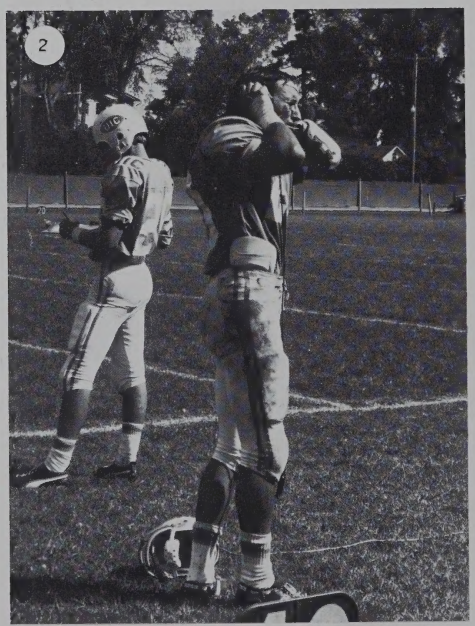
'71 Season Exhibits Improvement and Pride



The "71" Peacock football team began the season by defeating two non-conference foes, Culver-Stockton and Milton. Under the direction of new head coach Jim Killbreath and his assistants, the team showed a new spirit and direction. Due to the inexperience and youth of the team, the Peacocks were only able to tie one of their seven remaining games, finishing 2-6-1 over all.

A strong feature of the young Peacocks was the hard nosed play of the defense, led by seniors Pete Brejcha, Mark Jensen, Wendell Whitcher, and Dave Barclay. The tough "D" held two opponents to no score during the season.

The offense, composed of young players, showed improvement through out the season. By the hard running of Steve Havlik and the receiving of senior Tom Novak, the offense showed they were there to play football.

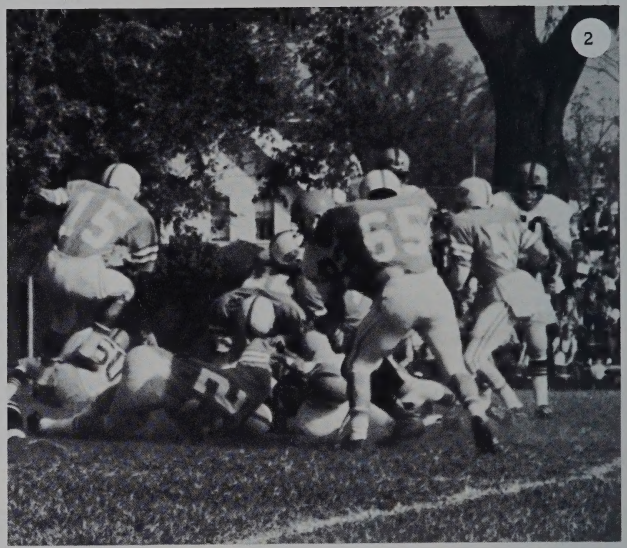
4) Big Blue converges on an unfortunate B.V. running back.
5) Pete Brejcha, most valuable defensive player, collars a Wartburg player.
6) George Ingold scores in the comeback bid against Wartburg.



In the first home opener, the Peacocks put on a impressive defensive and offensive display to defeat non-conference foe Milton, 17-0.

Dad's Day was observed the next Saturday as the Upper Iowa club battled traditional rival Wartburg for the bell. After a poor first half, the Peacocks put on a valiant comeback bid that fell short 38-24.

In the highlight game of the Homecoming weekend, the Peacocks were foiled 17-14 on a freak play. Upper Iowa won the statistics, but not the game.

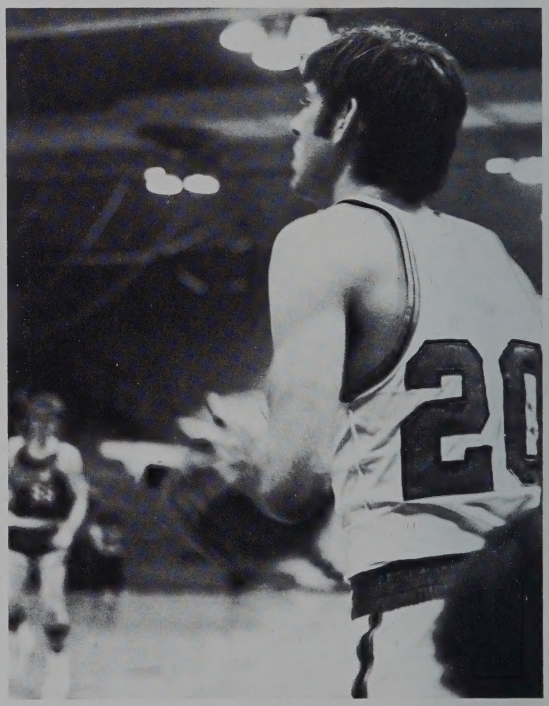
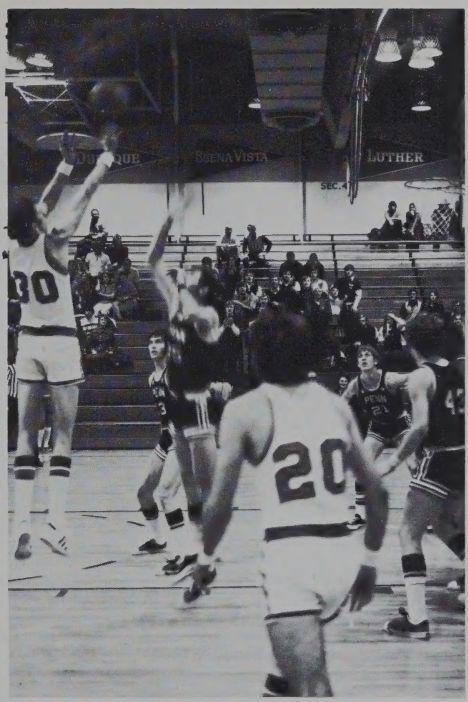
Cagers determination Brings Them to Good Standing in Playoffs



Strong team effort and consistently fine offense led the '72 Cagers to a record basketball season. Beginning with two wins over Luther and Cornell, the team travelled to the Lakeland Tourney in Sheboygen, Wisconsin. The vacation tournament saw the Peacocks capture 2nd place and set the pace for the remainder of the season.

Returning victorious from the Sheboygen tournament, Upper Iowa faced four straight conference games. Steady improvement by the Peacocks enabled them to win over Central as well as Dubuque and William Penn on the home court the following weekend. Team effort, coupled with excellent shooting and rebounding statistics, proved to be the key to success.



With the pace of the season picking up and a chance at the Conference title, the Peacocks poured on the power and captured the next four straight games. UI wiped Lea College 107-66, then travelled to Luther to edge over them 73-71 in the last two seconds of play. Undefeatable even on foreign courts, the cagers went on to defeat Briar Cliff 89-66.

With four games remaining in the season, and six seniors determined to end their basketball careers in grand style, the Peacocks defeated BV, Dubuque, Wm Penn, Central and Simpson in rapid succession. Leading the conference, UI entered the playoffs with a pride that was hard to beat. The Peacocks played a tremendous game to the finish and proved worthy of their record.

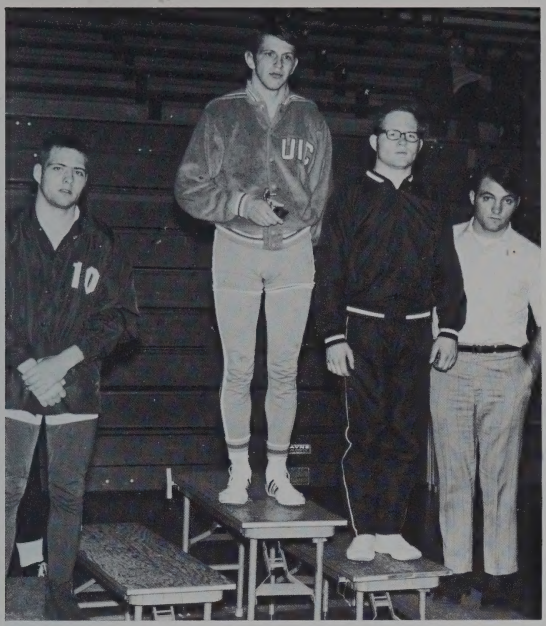
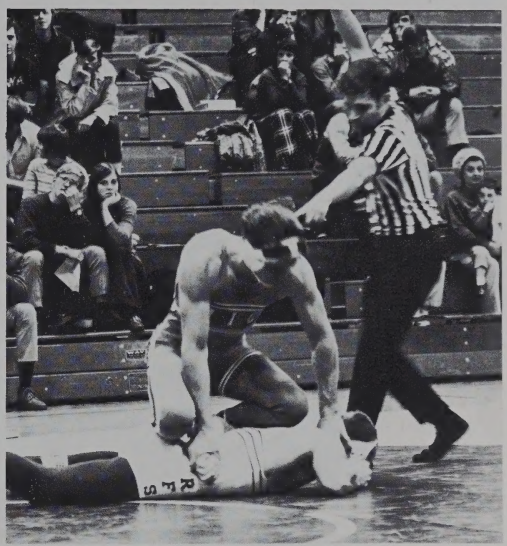
Wrestlers Grapple for Conference 1st

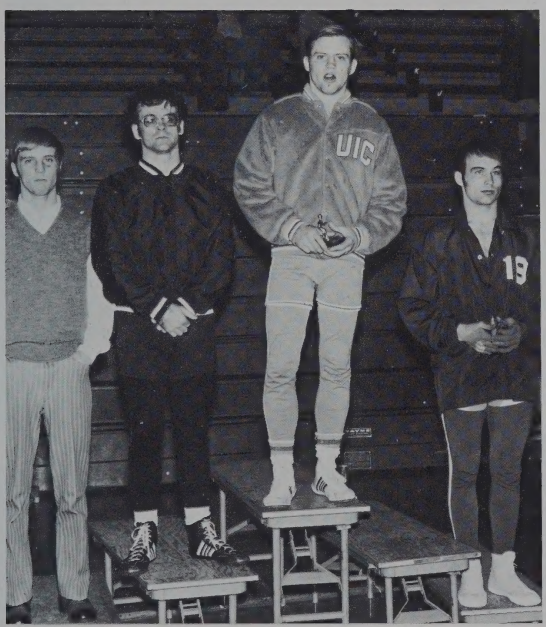
Faced with a near perfect record from last year, plus the loss of three national champions, the '72 wrestling squad began surprisingly well.

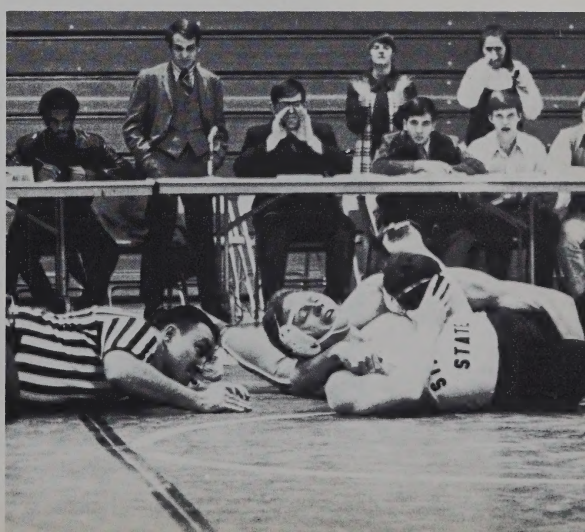
Beginning with the Graceland Tournament, the team knew that they would have to fight to maintain their reputation. Competing well, the Peacocks claimed a few individual titles and placed well. Experience gained, the team then moved on to N. W. Missouri and Bemidji.

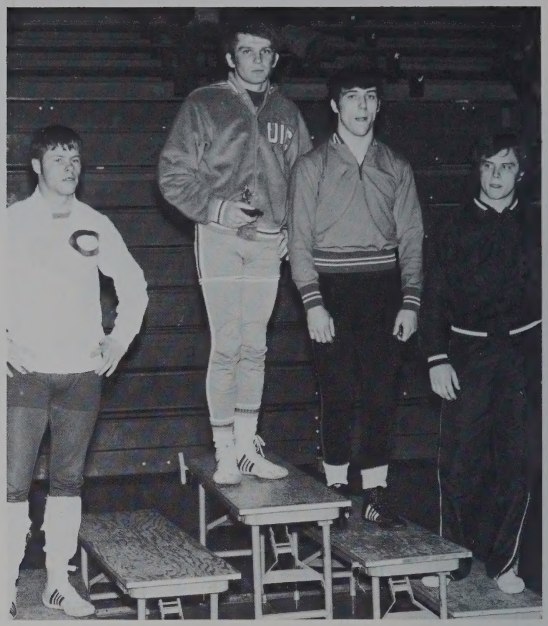


Placing second in their own Upper Iowa Tourney, and with two consecutive dual meet victories, the Peacocks were well on their way. Narrowly beaten for the tournament title by St. Cloud State, the team did however manage to capture a few individual firsts: Ingvall at 134, Bruce Gast at 142, Dennis Daker at 150, and 158 pounder Al Cook. Suffering from the loss of injured men, Upper Iowa fared well through the next few meets.









Former NIACC wrestler Bruce Gast added a fresh talent to this year's team and captured a first at the Upper Iowa tourney.

Once again the Peacocks claimed the Conference title. For the fifth year, Upper Iowa had proven that its wrestling team was tops. And again UI claimed champions: Greg Hutchison, Doug Guilford, Dick Ingvall and Dennis Daker. But the honors didn't stop there either; Dennis Daker was named outstanding wrestler of the tournament and first year coach Jim Killbreath was named Iowa Conference Coach.

UI Lettermen and Cheerleaders Faced With Fight for School Spirit

Composed of the letter winners from the various inter-collegiate sports, the UI Club is concerned with boosting school spirit at Upper Iowa. Members operate the concession stand at all sports events and this year raffled a pig to raise money to send the wrestling team to the NAIA finals to Oregon.

Working with the athletic department and most closely with the UI Club, the cheerleaders find the job of uniting the student body at athletic events challenging. Other than making posters, selling sandwiches to earn travelling money, and acting as good will ambassadors for junior varsity teams also, the cheerleaders participate in the annual cheerleading clinic.

ΧΔΕ Promotes Unity Along With Social Activities

The women of Chi Delta Epsilon strive for sisterhood, friendship, high academic achievement and Greek unity. Throughout the year the Chis have achieved this in many ways.

At homecoming this year, the Chis and Kappas united to build a float which took 1st place. The biggest event of the year, however, came with the Winter Formal held in Minneapolis, Minnesota. Everyone gathered at the Chanhassen Dinner Theatre to enjoy "I Do, I Do" along with an excellent dinner. The remainder of the year was well rounded with other activities including campouts, a Fondue party, and the Spring formal at Timmerman's in Dubuque.

KHB Retreats to the Outdoors for Fun, Service, and New Perspectives

Founded on February 18, 1919, Kappa Eta Beta is now the oldest social sorority on campus. Though it also stresses the Greek ideals of high scholarship and leadership, Kappa also finds time for holiday parties, formals, get-togethers, and visits to the elderly and handicapped.

As women who also enjoy the great outdoors, Kappas concentrate on campouts, sledding and caroling excursions, retreats, and intramural sports. Various hikes to Big Rock and Klock's Island round out the outdoor program.

ΣΝΣ Strives for Social Graces

The women of Sigma Nu Sigma strive for sincerity, nobility of character, and social graces. Founded in 1924, the sorority strives for these qualities as well as the loyalty shared by the sisters and the college.

Fall and spring formals help to fill the Sigma social calendar, along with occasional gatherings with their brother fraternity, Beta Theta Phi. The Sigmas not only work toward unity with other Greek organizations, but also actively participate in many college activities. The members of Sigma have found true sisterhood within their organization and enjoy their social activities, friendly chats, and long-lasting friendships.

ΒΘΦ Settles into New House

Above all else, the Betas value brotherhood and loyalty. Most of their calendar is planned around these basic ideals with many social activities designed to provide better relations among alumni and new members.

After the big move into their new house, the Betas settled into an active year of social gatherings. The first freshman "get acquainted" party was a huge success, and was followed with the usual assortment of weekend parties and formal occasions.

ΑΦΩ Serves College and Community

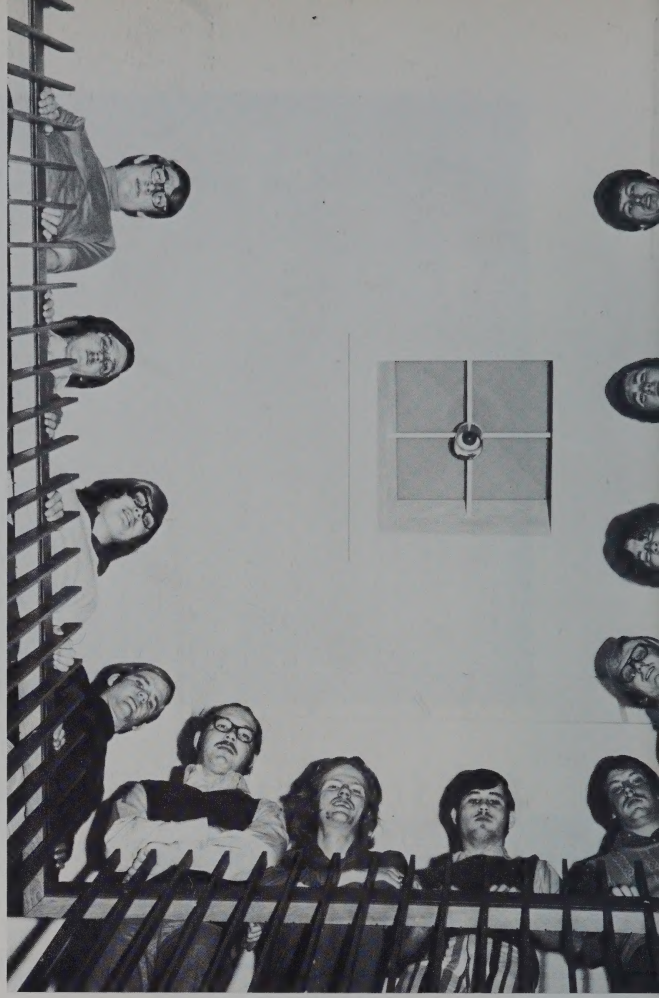
Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, works for the benefit of the student. Many college services, such as help with registration, school drivers, pledge projects which benefit the campus, and student directories have become annual services of the fraternity. Teaming with the Ecology Club, APO helped to clean the Fayette area, and each year maintains the community billboard.

Acacia Is Welcomed to the Ranks of the Greeks



Organized in January, Acacia became the newest fraternity on campus; but intends to become the second one to claim national affiliation. Through the determination of four "founding fathers" and other interested students, the fraternity began to take shape after receiving the necessary approval of IF-PC.

Basically a social fraternity, Acacia does, however, provide services to the school and community. Along with the other established fraternities, Acacia participates fully in school and Greek functions. In fact, Acacia claimed the first place trophy in the Greek softball tournament this year. If all plans proceed as expected, Acacia will receive its national status and become an even more active member of the Greek system.

Takes Over Old Music Hall

Continuing with the formalities of first year affiliation, Tau Kappa Epsilon moved into larger quarters. The Music Hall serves as meeting place, guest house, and social center for the twenty members. Many activities include alumni and representatives from other campuses.

Other than the usual social functions and Greek activities, the presence of a new member was evidenced at many of the sports events throughout the year. Yes, Upper Iowa College finally acquired a live mascot - "the TKE peacock."

ROSS' OF OELWEIN

Congratulations Seniors!

A Final Note . . .

The production of this yearbook was plagued with deadlines, delays, and other difficulties, but the effort was well worth it.

To those who helped us when the going got rough, we will never forget your kindness. Al and Debbie, Pete and Kinker, Barb and Dave, Baje, Bob S., Barb B., and all others who helped -- it's nice to know that there are some who still care.

For the virtue of patience, Sodie and Buck are to be commended and most of all thanked for their understanding and unselfishness.

We hope that you enjoy this yearbook and will take the time to understand what it really means to you.
